

PREVIOUSLY IN OUR STORY

Last year was a very unusual one for Claire. While on an island vacation, she met Philippe, a very handsome, enchanting stranger. He was unlike anyone she had ever encountered back in her hometown of Pittsburgh.

Their relationship was characterized by immeasurable romantic highs and profound disappointments brought upon by his periodic, mysterious disappearances. When they were last together, Philippe was called away with an urgent telegram. He asked Claire to accompany him.

Claire had to decide whether she should follow her heart and run away with a man she knew so little about. Or, should she follow her head and return to her safe, predictable life in Pittsburgh?
